Putting It Together

"You're a part of me, I'm a part of you." The words on the senior bulletin board in September ring true for students at Mansfield High School. Every person, every element of the MHS community has a profound and lasting impact on every one of us. Our reactions to those we encounter in the future will very much depend upon the people we meet now. Maybe the shy opera lover in your freshman math class subtly clued you in to the fact that athletic-types do have more than the ledgendary two brain cells. Hopefully by the time we graduate, we will have learned that stereotypes like this only serve to separate us as a community.

Like the pieces of a puzzle, the components of Mansfield High School are each integral parts of the whole MHS experience. To remove one individual or group from the school would be to leave a gap in a jigsaw puzzle. Each individual has an impact, however small, upon the lives of others.

All you have to do is work on Putting It Together.

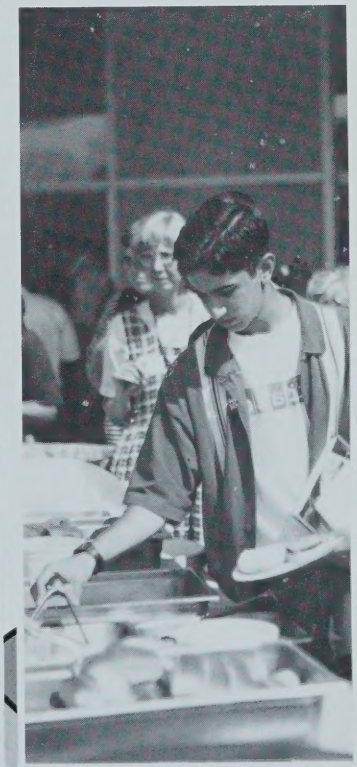
Get ready to go! Anthony Victoria, Connie Blaisdell and Liz Johnson prepare toperform.

Putting it together. Becky Davey, Jen Horoweic, Jeanne Kenaley, Jaime Freedman and Stacy Coccia create the senior bulletin board.

Injured and surviving. Becky Kiley and Jaime Williams hang out in the lobbby after school.

Hamburgers away!! Peter Lucido grabs some food cooked up by some seniors.



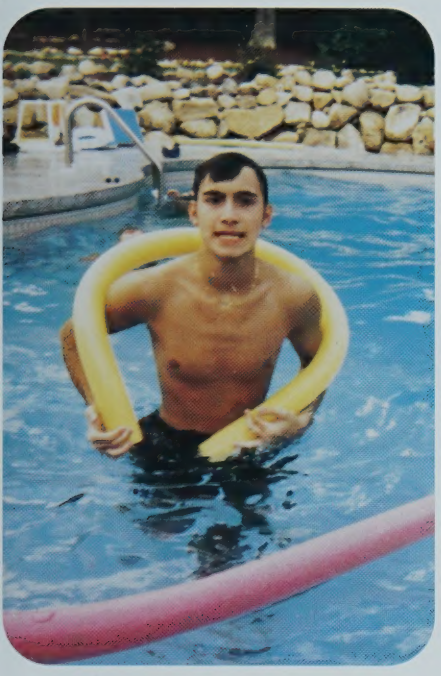
They're finally laughing. Ryan Heroux, and his younger sister Sarah are caught talking to each other instead of fighting.

Don't mess with me! Purple (now blue) sashed Michael Calvin flashes a grin, but he'll throw a punch if you get too close.

Been there, done that. Kellie Brides and Mike Amoruso share a laugh and a smile before practice.

What an uncommon seat! Melissa Gordon plops herself into a funky chair.

Monster from the blue lagoon? Nope, it's just Anthony Victoria.



A Slice of Life

Contrary to popular opinion, students do not live at MHS. Although activities, acedemics, and athletics occupy a great deal of time, students do have lives away from school replete with families, friends, jobs, responsibilities, interests, and commitments. Often, extracurricular activities cut into sleep time, but somehow, students manage.

The outside world is full of interesting things for MHS students to become involved in. The arts in Mansfield have never been healthier now that P.O. Box Art on North Main Street offers live entertainment and the Mansfield Music and Arts Society is becoming more active. In addition, several MHS students interested in improvisational theatre perform with the UnCommon Theatre Company's Kung Fu Improv.

Opportunities for community service are never lacking. Holiday window painting for Citizens' Scholarship Fund is an old favorite for students who wish to raise money. Jenn Horoweic and Stacy O'Donnell, amoung others, volunteer their time caring for stray dogs at the Mansfield Animal Shelter during their off-hours.

And of course, there's the all-important after school employment. With the high concentration of supermarkets as it is right now, the food industry supports the college funds and automobile upkeep of quite a few MHS people. Fortunately, work study makes is easier for students to work lucrative hours and gain valuable job experience at the same time.

The outside world is full of opportunities for students willing to go without sleep. It's tiring, but, hey, it's A Slice of Life.

A Piece of the Action

To the outside observer, athletic teams at MHS are nothing more than a flurry of wins, losses, records, and statistics. But the reality is comprised of much more than just games and matches. Players spend more time practicing than playing; therefore, it stands to reason that many of the most memorable moments happen away from the field.

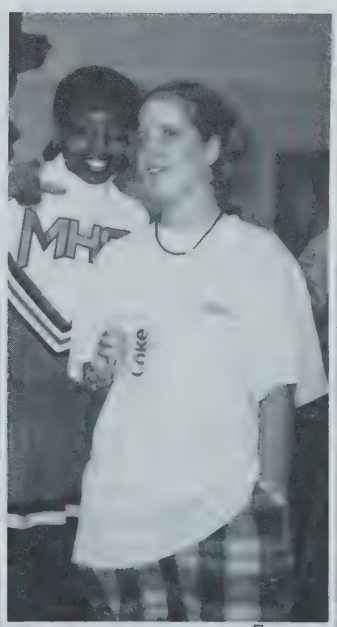
Did you know that the cross country team enjoys hacking and playing football during its free time? What fall season would be complete without the football team's trip to Thompson's Island or the Field Hockey Banquet? At Mansfield High, being a student athlete is more than just getting A Piece of the Action.

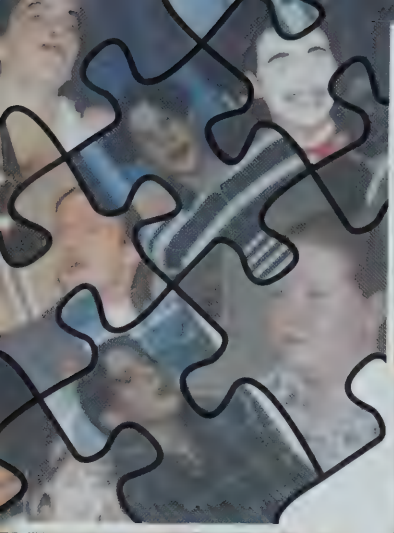
Taking a break! Tricia Haddigan and Kellie Constas sit themselves down before they have to run off to practice.

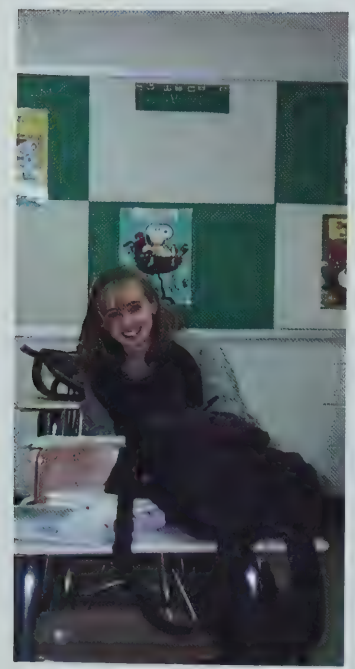
Need some help there? Chris McKinley looks on while his friend Greg Lawlor reaches to tie his shoes.

Hey baby, what's your sign? Lance Dentino gives a dirty look as the moment between he and Kevin Eagan is interrupted by the camera.

To the point. Jaime Williams tries to get Charlene Ralli to look our way, but to no avail.

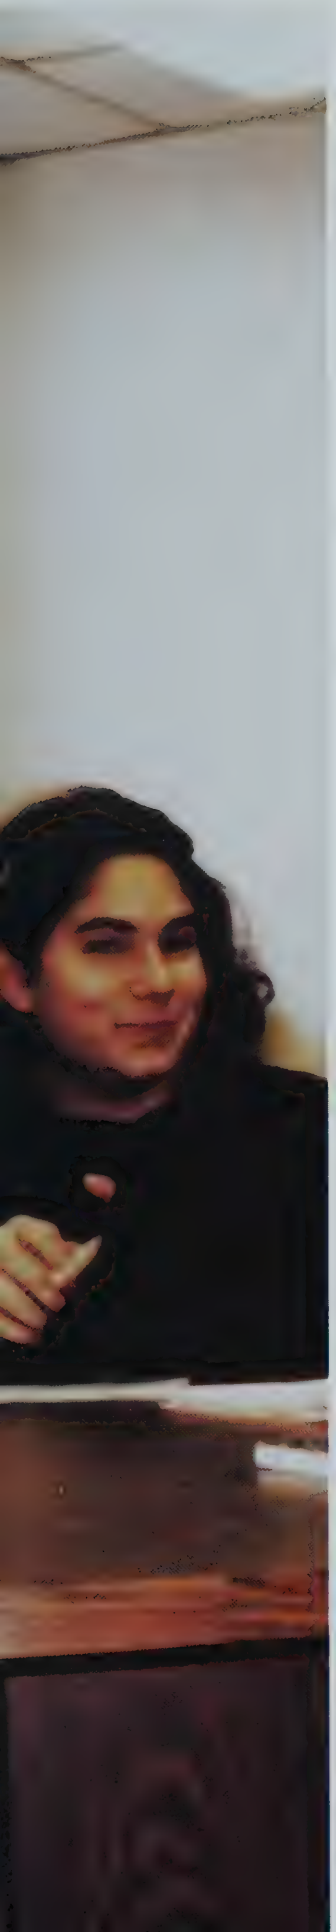






Hit it. Mike Phipps and Crystal Bozzi play at a football game.

Caught in the act. Secretary Sarah Briggs plans a meeting.



Come Together

Organizations at MHS play roles that vary in size and magnitude from all-consuming to barely-there in the lives of MHS students. Offerings range from the literary to the acedemic to the socially-conscience to the musical to the just plain fun. And although no school can offer enough activities to meet absolutley everybody's needs, students at MHS seem fairly satisfied with the spectrum of offerings.

Extra-curricular activities not only fill spare time and provide enhanced social prospects, but also make a small difference in the Mansfield community. Concert choir has fun at rehersals and the Christmas play, but also sing for the elementary schools and senior citizens groups. SADD "lobbies" students to avoid drinking and driving. The members of Student Council rewards the faculty during National Teachers' week. Activities at MHS have an impact upon the school and community. Whatever the reason, students at MHS Come Together.

Hey, we're talking poetry here! Lisa Kaufmann, Casey Holford, and Melissa Gordon of the Writer's Forum give very unpoetic looks.

Little Girl Blue Come Blow Your Horn. Mr. Conti summons Cynthia Calderwood to practice.

Plainclothes cheerleaders? Could be! Rena Gambale and Jaime Riley boogie down to the music at a football game.

Milling about. Kirsten Young shows a freshmen companion the ropes.

Get me outta here! Senior Jen Horowiec escorts freshmen Paul Briggs and Sarah Brown.

Pieces of the Puzzle

Parents are famous for telling their teen-aged offspring to enjoy their high school years--they'll be the best years of their lives. Weather or not that's true is debatable, but one thing is certain--that one's young adulthood is a crucial period of growth and maturity. These are the years when students decide who they are and who they want to be. Although underclassmen aren't burdened with the weight of a reputation for maturity, they are, in effect, adults. One day, they will rule the world (scary thought), and Mansfield High will prepare them for this important, if somewhat exaggerated, job. The education, relationships, and responsibilities gained during four years at MHS serve as important lessons for life--Pieces of the Puzzle that is a lifetime of experiences.

Hangin' out in the band hallway. Suzanne Conroy and Kaitlin Columbare spend their free time the same way many others at MHS do.

We Go Together

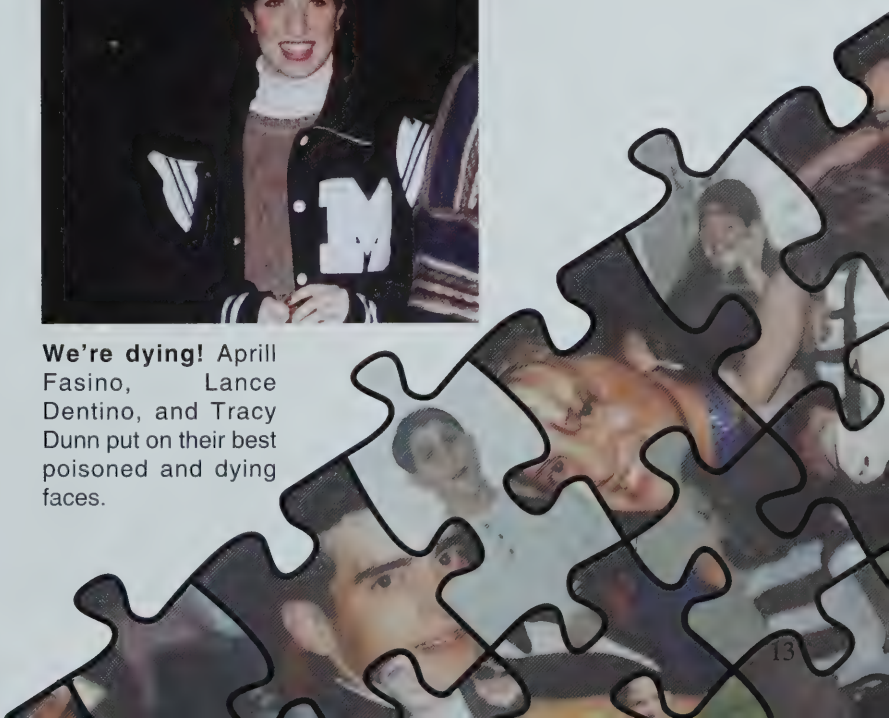
Few of us have made it through our lives so far without undergoing the "Grease" experience. You know, making a huge bowl of over-buttered popcorn, gathering around the TV with a couple of friends, and watching a cheesy musical starring John Travolta. Most sing along at the end, hoping that they'll be able to keep the friends they have now forever just like Danny and Sandy. Unfortunately, life is not a movie and the fantasy presented on the TV screen is just a popular myth. As much as they'd like to be one graduating class united, it's nearly impossible in a class as diverse as the class of '97. Sure, like every class, we're cliquey, and sure, we have more than our fair share of problems, but there's one thing that binds us--we've spent twelve years together. "You're a part of me, I'm a part of you." Everyone of us affects the lives of everyone else, be it a best friend or someone you never talk to. We can't have a mushy graduation scene like that in "Grease," (Could we afford a carnival like that in the first place?) but it's true that We Go Together.

Here we go again! Sheryl Arduino explains the scheduling on Freshmen Orientation Day.

"Quick, steal all the books!" Monica Medeiros and Carrie Flammia cause trouble in the English office.

"I'm here! The party can start now!" Jen Vlachos is always "where it's at."

We're dying! Aprill Fasino, Lance Dentino, and Tracy Dunn put on their best poisoned and dying faces.

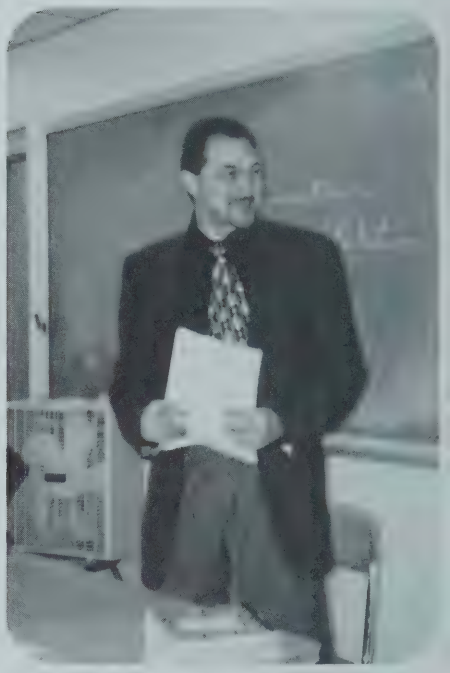


The Right Combination

The athletics and activities at MHS certainly are important, but what about the education? As a recognized Blue Ribbon School of Excellence, MHS delivers one humdinger of a schooling, due in part to the wide range of course offerings and in part to the faculty. Besides facilitating classroom learning, the teachers at MHS go above the call of duty (and contract), volunteering their time after hours for organized activities and athletics, extra help, and even just plain conversation. Teachers are often plagued with requests for advice on college and personal problems in addition to tutoring in the acedemics. For example, some students consult Mrs. Leveroni, mother of four college grads, about the college application process so often that she knows their credentials by heart. "I even took the same SAT-prep course as Mrs. Lev's son, Tommy. I think it really worked." says Becky Davey, a former student of Mrs. Leveroni's.

Several teachers and other faculty members are reputed to be excellent listeners and extollers of advice. Without crossing that fine line between friendliness and lack of professionalism, the faculty at MHS have struck uponThe Right Combination.

"Is there a doctor inthe house?" Armed with a PhD in American Lit., Dr. Venuti takes on his AP English 12 class.



"Did you hear the one about..?" Mr.Perry and Ms. Wood share a really bad joke before class.

What's the score? Mrs. Jackson cheers the Hornets on to victory.

Do you treat your furniture at home like that? Mr. Miller gets caught breaking the rules, and Mr. Deasy gets caught not enforcing them.

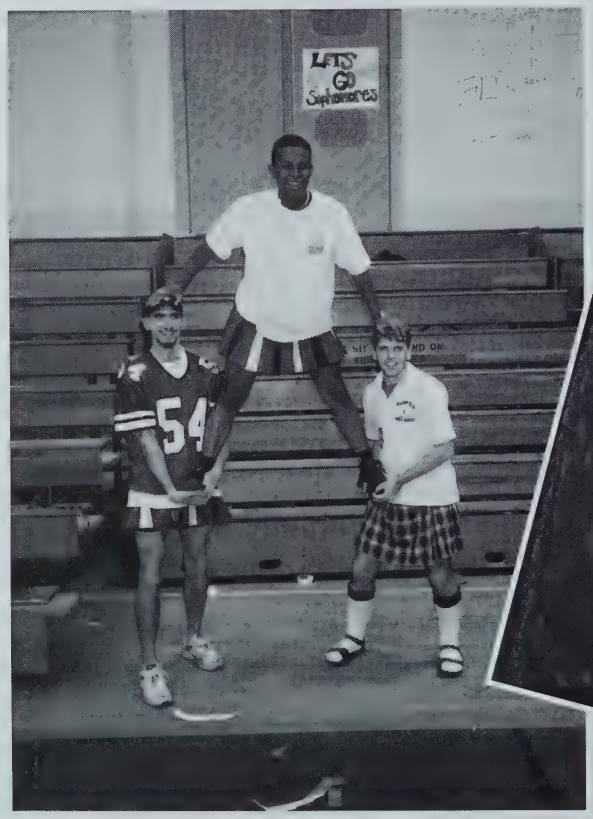
The Missing Piece

You. The picture is incomplete without you. What impact do you have upon the MHS environment? Probably more than you realize. Why keep it hidden? No matter who you are or what you do, you effect the lives of every other person at MHS every day. You are The Missing Piece.

STUDENT LIFE

Sophomores save the day. Kristy Thibodeau and Joanne Pfeil scream their Homecoming spirit.

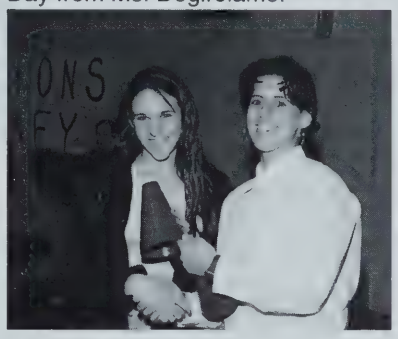


Real men aren't afraid to let their feminine sides show through. Cheerleaders Mike Sullivan, Reggie Woody, and Mike Phipps build a Homecoming pyramid.

Sitting pretty. Sophomore Lindsay Tucker accepts a Homecoming gift.

MHS Chief. Green and white Caitlin Medeiros shines with Mansfield pride.

And the winner is... Jill Thorton accepts her prize for Most Spirited on Crazy Hair Day from Ms. Degirolamo.

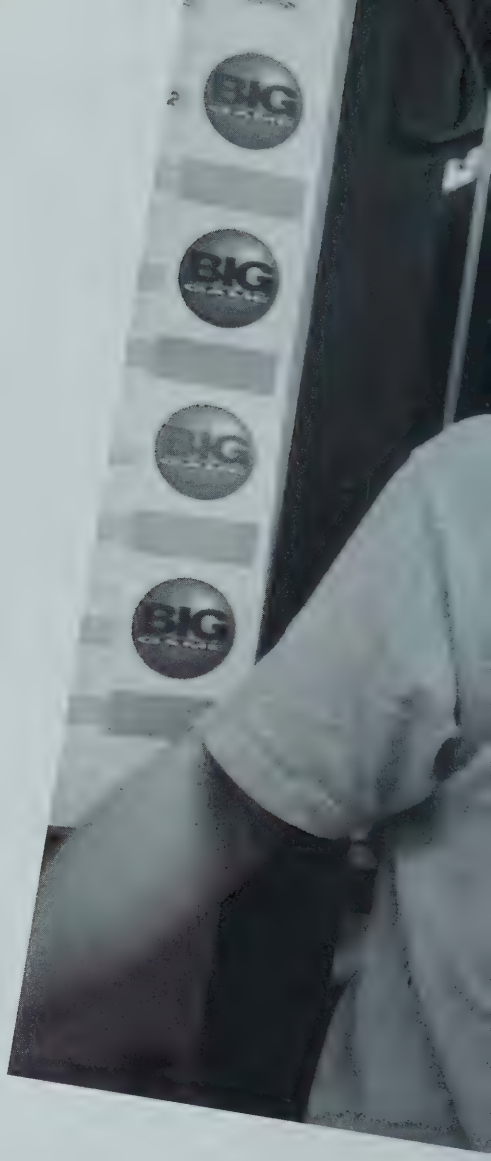


Traditions Continue... Homecoming

The 1996 Homecoming Court and Senior football players.

Student Employment

Working 9 to 5



Despite MHS students' busy schedules, money has to come from somewhere. Very often, it comes from Wendy's and the Mall. After school jobs finance social lives, vehicles, and college educations.

The grocery store scene probably provides the most job opportunities for High School undergrads. Just about every supermarket in the area boasts one or more MHS student or grad. Other emploment favorites include fast food restaurants, video stores, Great Woods maintenance, and, of course, good old fashioned baby-sitting.

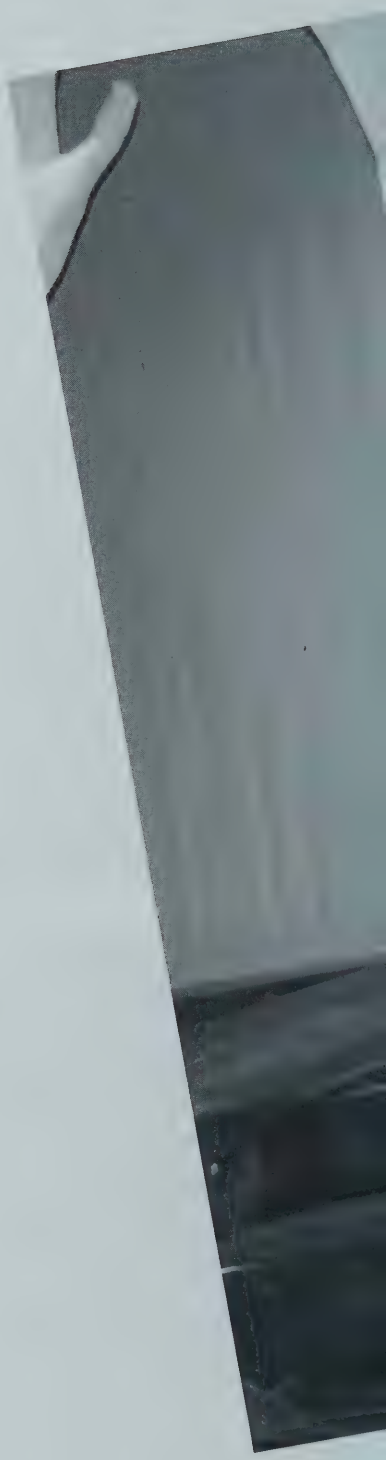
"Card number or telephone, please." Video Mania employee Erin O'Driscoll prepares to return movies to their shelves.

Service with a smile. Family Food Mart demigod Dave Dias takes a break from stocking shelves and schlepping lottery tickets to say hi to the photographer.

"Paper or plastic?" Ro-Jack's cashier Renee McElroy takes care of some late night customers before shutting down for the evening.

Grape juice stains galore. DryClean Pros worker Casey Copely pretreats a soiled garment.

Star Struck



After ten minutes of tense anticipation, a crowd of spectators bursts into thunderous applause. Members of the crowd cheer, hoot, and and clap their hands until they're sore. Where are these diehard fans located? A professional football game? A prizefight? An inaugural?

No, not at all. The audience in question is watching the MHS drama club's spring '96 production of Caberet. All three productions received standing ovations. Several older audience members were reduced to tears in the presence of of such a powerful depiction of an era that they remembered so vividly.

Although quite a few students enjoy the arts opportunities offered by Mansfield High, several explore activities beyond the school realm. Great Woods, offering programs ranging from modern to classic music, is a traditional favorite for MHS students. MHS Thespians participate in the immediate area and beyond. And despite the fact that most girls quit dance class in elementary school and most boys never take it to begin with, more and more people are sticking with their jazz, tap, and ballet classes.

"Come to my garden..." Elizabeth Johnson portrays the hilariously cold Mrs. Medlock in the November '96 production of The Secret Garden.

Audience participation. Freshmen Jen Creed and Robyn Coccia hang out at Plainville's Second Look Books after a performance of Kung Fu Improv.

"Into The Woods (pivot, pivot)" UnCommon Theatre Company members Wendy Wink and Allyson Scarchilli portray Florinda and Lucinda in the Sondheim/ Lapine production at the Orphevm Theatre in Foxboro.

Time To Unwind

It happens to everyone once in awhile. Stressed out students need to relax! Here's what some MHS students told us about their free time:

"I dance to relax!"--Kerri-Lyn Nickerson

"I like to play basketball and field hockey and hang out with friends."

--Heather Shea

"We laugh. It burns calories."--Allyson Scarchilli and Dorothy Shaver

Kickin' back. Sarah Dunfey gets some sun after an especially strenuous field hockey game.

Life long pals. Shannon Roberts and Christine Whitty share a laugh after a difficult work out.

Jump for Joy. The girls' soccer team demonstrates that exercise relieves stress.

THLETICS

All-Hock Superstar! Recognized state-wide for her field hockey prowess, Captain Carrie Flammia whacks the ball.

All Set!

Through teamwork and group effort, the MHS volleyball team accomplished their greatest goal this season--to make it to state tournaments for a second year in a row before the last game of the season. In the team's third year of existance at Mansfield High School, it has become even stronger and more unified. The team's favorable record is the direct result of excellent leadership at the hands of co-captains Sheryl Arduino and Kristen Connell, as well commendable training by Coach Lorraine Weymouth. All indications point to an equally successfull '97-'98 season!

Flawless Hornets Achieve

Inside the numbers

MHS 14 - B-R 6
The Hornets defeated B-R in a hard fought rainy Friday night game. Touchdowns by Joe Todd and Ned Kristenson.

MHS 26 - L-S 14
Showing heart and determination, MHS recovered from 14 point to dominate the game. Both TDs in the 2nd half were scored on 4th down plays.

MHS 34 - O.A. 0
MHS totaled 202 yards rushing and 122 yards passing. In workmanlike fashion the Hornets played football the way it should be played.

MHS 42 - Franklin 8
On a cold, frosty Memorial Park field, MHS did what it does best--WIN! With the exception of a couple of penalties which negated a couple of long runs and one touchdown, they put numbers on the board while running plays the way the coach draws them on the blackboard.

MHS 33- Canton 12
The Hornets once again had to recover from a 6 point deficit, but scored 20 points in the second half to put Canton away. Netting over 100 yards total offense, Matt Kelly had a great game.

MHS 34 - Attleboro 12
Eric Lundell had over 170 yards total offense and Joe Todd had over 100 yards rushing. The defense also had a great game.

MHS 21- Stoughton 6
Because the Hornets got off to a slow start, this was not an ideal Homecoming game. However, they still won a convincing victory, proving that good teams win on bad days.

MHS 35 - King Phillip 0
With the precision of a Swiss watch, Mansfield netted over 400 yards of total offense and the defense held KP to just 20 yards total offense.

MHS 55-Sharon 21
Totaling over 90 yards, Matt Kelly heavily contributed to the MHS victory. Also instrumental was Eric Lundell, scoring 3 touchdowns.

MHS 14-N. Attleboro 13
Trailing 13-0 until the 4th quarter, MHS showed a lot of pride in holding the explosive N.A. offense in check. The Hornets were named Hockomock Champs after their 10th win of the season.

MHS 47-Foxboro 34
The Hornets showed its prowess in gaining over 500 yards total offense and scoring 7 times. The season ended with an 11-0 record.

SUPERBOWL
MHS 26- Swampscott 14
MHS won the Div. 3b Super Bowl and became the number 1 ranked team in the state. The defense came up big with 7 sacks and great overallplay throughout the game. The game proved an incredible end to a flawless, MHS record-breaking season of 12-0.

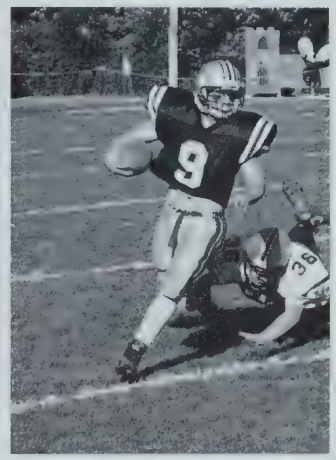
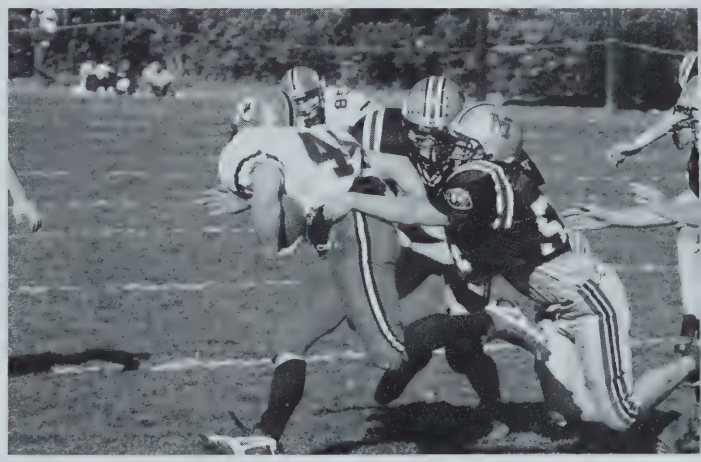
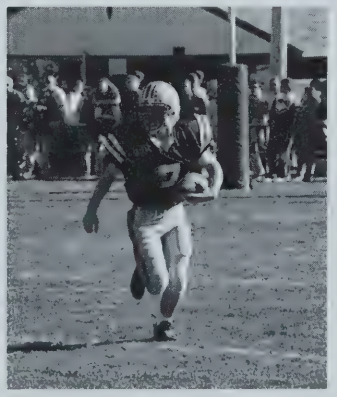
Gridiron Glory!

Gang Tackle! Neil DeGirolamo and Steve Guilfoy come in for the kill.

Near Miss! Ned Kristenson eludes a would be tackler.







See Ya Later! Joe Todd sets his sight on the endzone.

Group Hug! Adam Luke and Joe Todd take down an O.A. player.

Can you say "Heisman"? Adam Izzo returns a kick with perfect form.

In the Limelight

Rally Ralli! Charlene Ralli shines her pearly whites at the crowd.

Unlike the field hockey and soccer teams, who depend upon at least moderately dry fields, or the ski club, which relies upon snow-covered slopes, the fall and winter cheerleading squads possess the uncanny ability to adapt to whatever conditions they find themselves in. Outfitted for both soggy turf outdoors and slippery floors indoors, the cheerleaders perform injury-defying feats amid inclimate weather of all sorts, while making it seem effortless. The MHS Cheerleading squads practice and perform just as much as their comrades on other athletic teams, but also have the additional responsibility of decorating and rallying.

Lime colored ladies. Green clad Amanda Ralli, Allison Mantia, Janelle Chartier, Shana O'Leary, Sarah Briggs, Adrienne Tucker, Carrie Freeman, and Shirley Newson rest before the fall sports rally.

Who's #1? Captain Beth Noll proudly proclaims her MHS spirit.

On the go. Amid the rustle of pom-poms Jen Mantia escorts the Homecoming floats to Memorial Park.

Fight, Fight, Fight! Shana O'Leary and Janelle Chartier will the football team to victory.

Getting Psyched. Hornet enthusiast Rachael Burgio leads the crowd in a cheer.

Twist and Shout. Caitlin Meideros tosses the shot put into orbit.

Run, Forrest, Run. Mansfield runner Shannon Roberts leaves North Attleboro runners in the dust.

ACTIVITIES

"You Gotta Have Heart"

"It takes a big heart to sing from the soul," says choir president Doug Dutra. And from the sounds emanating from Miss Trombley's classroom every Thursday night from 7-9 p.m., the members of concert choir have dinosaur-sized cardiac muscles (and lungs and vocal cords to match!). This energized lung power is due partially to the large new contingent of underclassmen. "There are a lot of new faces this year," says veteran singer Jamie Freedman, "but we sound great. Everyone really to want to be here and enjoys what we're doing."

Like the group itself, choir's repertoire has has grown and changed since last year. Although such favorites as Sunset Boulevard's "With One Look" and the holiday classic "Oh Holy Night" are back by popular demand, much new music - classical and contemporary - has been added to the program. "It's Not Easy Being Green," made famous by that icon of our age, Kermit the Frog, as well as other songs particularly endeared to our generation were chosen to complement the new array of classical music. The group's selection of Christmas music has grown and assumed a more spiritual feeling.

Of course it takes more than a big heart and an incredible repertoire to make a choir great. Audiences have a way of sensing that which is obvious to anyone who knows anything about the MHS concert choir: it is their group ethic, their love for one another, that enables them to sing from the soul.

Music of the Night

The old visiting boys' locker room over at the middle school is haunted. Go over there on any Wednesday evening, and you's hear the eerie sound of violins, with one bass playing whole notes in the background. Who could be so discontentedly playing in such an odd place? The ghost of some long forgotten Foxborough basketball player? The posthumous representation of a cranky circa 1955 coah, sworn to avenge himself against those who mocked him in life? NO, the true identity of these music makers is far scarier than that.

It's the MHS Orchestra! Aughhhhhh! Now was that so terrible?

The Mansfield Orchestra consists of about 25 cellists, bass players, violinists, violists, clarinetists, pianists, and players of various other instruments. Their music ranges from serious classical to music from modern motion picture soundtracks such as Jurrasic Park. Although all members of "dorkestra" (a term coined by Stacy O'Donnell) love music, they are drawn to Miss VanPelt's tiny room by the camaraderie that exists among them.

"It's a family thing," says senior Stacy Whelan, as freshman Robin Coccia laughs in agreement. Both have a twin sister in orchestra with them.

Co-workers are also found fiddling together. Both violist Jason Martel and violinist Kerrina Whelan work for Paul Young, a company that produces wigs and hairpieces. Jason helped Kerri secure the job.

The group also enjoys some firendly competition, like tennis tournaments and by-audition-only music festivals such as SEMSBA or Districts.

And one last thing that make the MHS Orchestra unique: it is not exclusive to MHS. A few members come from Bishop Feehan High School where orchestra is not offered and a few players come from QMS. The orchestra sure knows how to draw the pieces of the community together.

Orchestra's Rules of the Game

1. The pass belongs in the soap dish.

2. Passion for hair pieces required.

Musical Love. Violinists Nancy Fung and Kerri Whelan get along in perfect harmony before a Wednesday evening rehearsal.

" Tommy Can You Hear Me?"

Well, maybe little Tommy Walker is blind, deaf and dumb, but the pinball wizards in the band and guard don't miss a beat! No one in this group "plays by sense of smell." The marching band and color guard's 1996 season competition show, based upon the Tony award winning rock opera "The Who's Tommy" by Pete Townshend, built upon last year's tributes to "Hair" and "James Bond" and continued their devotion to excellence. Although the band/guard was somewhat eclipsed by the football team's spectacular season and did not always receive the attention and appreciation it deserved, persistant school spirit shown through in their attendance at all home games. Band/guard members certainly put in the hours (the famed "24-hour" Saturdays, competitions, all home football games, concerts, parades, community events, holiday caroling), they, like many then music/art groups at drama, do not get the appreciation they have earned.

What would the Christmas play be without the band's accompaniment? The memorial day parade would be a very quiet affair without their performance.Their songs are about a deaf, dumb, and blind boy - but the band and color guard are far from tone deaf.

Band's Rules of the Game

1. No emptying spit valve onto stand partner.

2. Abuse reserved for bass drummers.

Pasting It Together

Although last year's core staff members are back and revved up for another year of reporting and polling, the paper itself, the MHS Mainstream, is anything but old news. Unlike last year's articles on the pros and cons of block scheduling, this year's articles and editorials on the controversial hat-ban and parking situation sparked the interest, response, and in some cases, the ire of the student body.

"It's great that we've struck a chord," says editor Dipesh Mukerji. The staff was overjoyed at the response to a scathing letter on the op-ed page by staff writer Ben Cahill. Student reaction to this letter, written about the injustice and foolishness of the hat-ban, made evident the fact that the newspaper had finally found what they had been looking for: an audience.

Audience is the name of the game for the writer's forum. The goal of this sparsely populated but incredibly enthusiastic group of poet/author/journalists is to create a friendly, relaxed atmosphere in which to share, discuss, and critique each others' writings.

Although writing and reporting are the main focuses of the staffs of both the Stylus and the MHS Mainstream, the arduous and painstaking process of laying out the publications takes a great deal of time and labor. These writers strive to contribute to the high school's unique intellectual climate.

Stylus' Rules of the Game

1. Alliteration in all things.

2. Rumble with newspaper.

Mind over Matter

What do writing center tutors and members of the math team have in common? Most students at MHS would probably answer that they have absolutely nothing in common. Unfortunately, most people find one subject that they achieve in and stick to it. "I've always been good at math and science. I just can't seem to concentrate on the liberal arts." one sophomore says. Yes, it seems as if math/physical sciences and liberal arts are worlds apart.

But the same does not hold true for Writing Center tutors and members of the math team. No matter what the subject, this scholarly bunch's objective remains the attainment of excellence. Members of the math team strive to perfect their own mathematical prowess, while Writing Center tutors help others to improve their writing skills. The Writing Center has grown in popularity due to the new computers and, of course, the talented staff of tutors. The tutors are extremely accessible and are willing to offer their ideas and advice for anyone needing help. "Period four tutors, under Ms. Carli's watchful guidance, deserve special recognition for their tutoring skills." says somewhat biased fourth-period tutor Jeanne Kenaley.

The Math Team began their season well with a total score of nineteen on their October 22 MMSL contest. Co-captains Neal Patel, Rebecca Louise Davey, and Shaun Fitzgibbon look forward to leading their team through an equally successful season. "Cookies and milk are good," says Patel, "but we really excell when we get pizza and power-ade." The acedemic scene at MHS has never been heathier. No matter what the obstacle, for Writing Center tutors and members of the Math Team, it's always mind over matter.

Writing Center Rules of the Game

Stake claim on a comfy chair and don't let go.

You wanna piece of me?

With this year's controversial hat ban, the student body was in a perpetual state of disagreement over various issues. Block scheduling, parking, senior privileges. . . . . opinions were as diverse as the student population is. Fortunally, these issues are big enough for us all to just agree to disagree. But what about less controversial, more personal topics that may be a little too close to home for rational resolutions? Although altercations involving rumor spreading, verbal assault, fall-apart friendships, etc. don't ever make the MHS Mainstream's op-ed page, they are big news for the parties they personallly affect. Often, these disputes, left untreated, fester into bitter misunderstandings that end up ugly and unresolved. Luckily, MHS' Peer Mediation Group offers disputing parties an alternative to bitter partings and destroyed friendships. Mediation makes discrete, professional acting, neutral third parties available to warring factions to facilitate the peace making process. W-N-W, on the other hand, works for non-violent conflict resolution not only in the school, but also in the community. Promoting peace at MHS is only one aspect of the job; the members of W-N-W raise funds for battered women's shelters, attend conferences, and help to educate us, too. But most importantly, they lead by example.

W-N-W's Rules of the Game

1. No eating the bake sale stuff.

2. Promote Peace.

Service with a Smile

Red ribbon, signs, posters, carnations, boxes of canned fuits and veggie. . . . from the looks of things, someone sure cares about the students at MHS! Not a day passes that they aren't accosted by someone who asks them to remember to drive safely over the weekend or begs for donations of food and clothing for those who have trouble making ends meet. And just who are these unsung heroes of whom we speak? Why, none other than the members of SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving) and Student Council. As two of the major forces of good at MHS, these two groups take it upon themselves to act in the best interests of the MHS student population as well as the surrounding community.

SADD kicked off its year with a guest speaker from a local insurance agency. The program stressed the emotional, physical, and even financial consequences of driving drunk. And if the knowledge that driving drunk can cost thousands of dollars doesn't stop students from driving under the influence, perhaps the video that followed will. Many members were reduced to tears at the videotaped testimony of loved ones of the victims. The Student Council joined the National Honor Society in their efforts to gather food and clothing for the needy this year. Boxes were set up in the cafeteria, as well as several business locales around town. Although Student Counsel-sponsored events such as spirit week and the Homecoming Dance seem like pure fun, the greater good of their school and town is at heart.

SADD's Rules of the Game

1. Use only dry, crusty old markers.

2. Sign the attendance sheet or else.

Community Helpers

Blocks, markers, peanut butter crackers....It's all fun and games, right? Wrong! This editor (and LIttle Hornets alumna) visited Ms. Maurer's preschool lab and witnessed first hand the work and preparation that goes into each lesson. Contrary to myth, the purpose of preschool is not to get a jump start on learning French and pre-algebra, but rather to teach and develop social skills so that kids will learn better in groups when they reach grade school.

One of the main focuses of preschool is to teach children to appreciate, and, therefore, tolerate each other. The week of October 21st was spent on the nursery school community helpers unit. The young students learned about the roles of firefighters, police officers, teachers, librarians, and doctors through art activities, role playing, group discussions, and story time. And although they're always supervised by a MHS faculty member, the classes are run by the student teachers. They plan the classes, prepare the materials, and supervise the children.

Aside from time spent with real live kids, Preschool Lab students are required to do outside reading, write several papers about different learning and teaching styles, and discuss the problems that they encounter along with possible solutions. The teachers literally learn from their students. The real live students are perhaps the best learning aides that students of early childhood development could hope for.

Child prodigies. High school teacher Ms. Maurer instructs three, four and five year olds in her pre-school lab class.

Architects of the future. Little Hornets instructor Kendra Fisher prepares her project - building imaginary cities out of different shapes- for her students.

Little Hornets' Rules of the Game

1. Put the toys in the bucket.

2. We are all community helpers.

Up to the Challenge

Go for the gold! After capturing a medal, Kenny Fallon takes a victory lap.

While the rest of us are at home watching reruns of Seinfeld or eating dinner, a very special group of student athletes is busy sweating it out at the Jordan/Jackson gymnasium. The student coaches volunteer their time and athletic expertise to mentor specially-abled members of the Mansfield community every Thursday night from 6-7, and then again from 7-8. Whatever the athletes' special abilities, the encouragement and training provided by Challenger program, Project Teammate, and the Special Olympics allow challenged students to achieve their fullest potential.

Although primarily high school students coach Challenger program athletes, the program itself caters to athletes of all ages. Although the athletes are grouped by age, both groups follow the same basic fitness curriculum. The program was designed to be a low-pressure, fun, confidence building experience for coaches and athletes alike. "We practice soccer during the fall and basketball during the winter....drilling and redrilling the same material serves to help them get it down solid. Once they're confident in that game, they'll be more sure of themselves, let go, and have fun." One challenger coach explains.

Challenger and Project teammate athletes have a competitve edge, as well.....the Special Olympians from Mansfield placed well at the spring games!

Special Olympics' Rules of the Game

1. Practice sports-manship.
2. Be proud of your achievements.

Phot o ops. Kevin Haley is congratulated by Senator John Kerry following a praise-worthy performance at the Special Olympics.

Piecing It Together

Editor's Note

Well.....we're done putting it together! My hope is that this book provides you with a positive but honest memory of your years at Mansfield High School. I think we've captured some of the best aspects of the school--the things we do together! For me, the making of this book has been the best and most challenging aspect of my high school career. It was a tough job--luckily, I had tons of help!

Becky--thanks for the pics, the rambling, and the light touch of insanity you've provided. What would we ever do without you? Stacy--the layouts! Derek--it seems as if you always manage to find the time! My staff--too many to name you all, but you rock! Everyone's favorite roomies, the newspaper staff--hey! No bloodshed? A huge thank-you goes out to Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Baptiste, Mr. Rosa, Mrs. Flareghty, and Mr. Antolini for always making the time to help me with anything I needed. Mr. and Mrs. Roth of Walsworth Publishing Company, the great folks at the plant, and Mr. Geoffroy of Chestnut Hills Studios deserve a thundering round of applause for their efforts this and every year. And finally, the huge, triple-whammy thank-you goes out to Mr. Pontes. This whole thing would've been impossible without your support, guidance, and tolerance. Thanks for telling me not to compromise. Good luck!

So, about that missing piece we were telling you about. (see page 16.) Well, I trust you to fill in the blanks. Remember, these four years are only one small part of the long lives we've still got ahead of us. Stay well!

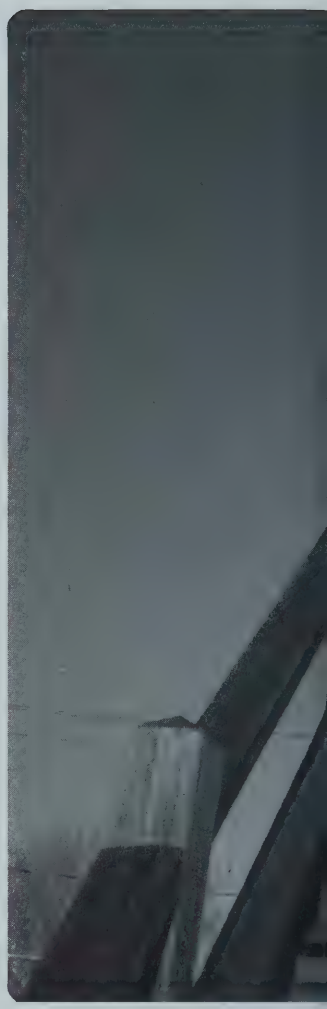
Nonperishable Goods



The 1996-97 school year has been one of change for National Honor Society members. New advisor Mr. Stahler and the MHS NHS committee have responded to the growing numbers of acedemically eligible students by opening discussion on establishing more stringent standards for admission. However, students enrolled in advanced placement and other demanding courses feel that such measures might serve only to penalize them for choosing to challenge themselves. No drastic policy changes have been implemented as of yet.

Although some traditions have changed, others have remained constant. Those cheery voices over the announcements every morning still belong to none other than the National Honor Society members. This year's food and clothes drive was so successful that Ms. Westlund's garage overflowed with nonperishable food items and a plethora of old clothes.

The Science Club began it's year with big plans for a variety of trips and activities. Although the tradition of having an annual fall planting was discontinued, club members enjoyed the natural world via a series of weekend hiking trips with Mr. Burger. Due to its size, the club had to be split up for these trips. "Several small groups would be easier and more enjoyable than one big loud noisy one," says President Chris McKinley, "and we're looking into speakers from BU, too."

Science Club's Rules of the Game

No going to the Country Store during food drive.

2.

If passengers are visible, the car isn't full yet.

Dulces and Bonbons

In the eyes of a foreigner, the stereotypical American is two things: a mindless consumer of greasy McDonalds Happy Meals and students of undemanding school systems. In a perfect world, the Frech and Spanish clubs at MHS would disprove these preconceptions. And they have proved that American students are indeed eager to learn and seek to explore other cultures. There are no sloths in the ranks of the acedemic clubs at MHS! However, they do eat an awful lot!

The annual field trip to the International Festival featured entertainment, coloquial knick knacks, traditional garb from assorted cultures....and a food court worthy of its own zip code. Desserts, entrees, appetizers, sushi, and even good ol' Coca-Cola were available. Students left Boston nurished and full.

Food helps the French and Spanish clubs raise funds as well. The French club peddles Holiday Advent Calanders (a chocolate every day until Christmas) for $11each in the hopes of raising enough money to go to (surprise!) a French restaurant in Boston. Both clubs raise money for holiday celebrations, movie and pizza parties, and various other expenses. For the members of French and Spanish clubs, food is truly neccessary for life!

FYI in Mansfield High

The staff of Mansfield High's very own news program, cable 8-affiliated MHS News, embarked upon its second season of reporting and producing with exciting prospects. With stories ranging from the human interest oriented spirit week and Homecoming to the more controversial block scheduling and technology (or lack thereof) in the school, there is something for everyone.

Although they are few, the production staff does an excellent job of keeping up with happening around town and school. While anchorwoman Lisa Butler reported on spirit week antics and traditions, Freshman reporter Cameron Barrows updated viewers on the implementing of a YMCA in Mansfield. Once established, the Mansfield Y would offer residents recreational facilities closer to home than than North Attleboro's YMCA. "The staff starts with news within the school and then works its way out into the community," says faculty advisor Mrs. Lane.

Reporting isn't the only task of the MHS News staff; they also tape and edit their work, readying it for broadcast. With the help of program coordinator John Caron and Mansfield Cable access facilities, they put out a rather polished end product. "Every episode gets a little bit better," comments Mrs. Lane, "and our existing staff does a great job, but we're always looking for people to help in any capacity. It's quite rewarding."

Edit till you drop. MHS anchor Jeremy Davidson prepares a story for the nex broadcast.

FACULTY/ACADEMICS

Don't Quit Your Day Job

Like many of the students they teach, faculty members at MHS remain in the building or on the field far after the 2:25 bell has sounded. Few of the activities and athletics that we students have come to take for granted could continue to thrive without faculty time, guidance, and expertise. Unlike students involved in extracurricular activities, however, have less to gain from participation; they have no college resumes to build, no social scenes to get in on, and certainly no extra time on their hands to get rid of. MHS teachers coach and advise their students because of their dedication to both their activities and their students.

Often, advisors remain at school long after even the office staff has left for the day. Sometimes even weekends are fair game for school activities that require advisor asistance. Deadlines and meetings with publishers often keep yearbook advisor Mr. Pontes late at school Friday night and then bring him in early Saturday morning. "I need to go home," he moans, "I need to watch 'Seinfeld.'" Mr. Burger, too, gives his off hours to his activity, the Science Club. In addition to organizing meeting and overseeing the MHS recycling efforts, he supervises weekend trips and in-school speakers. As Student Council advisor, Ms. DeGirolamo supervises everything from Teachers' week carnations to dances to School Improvement Council reps. Club advisors and athletic coaches can spend as little time as a few minutes every now and again to several hours everyday.....six or seven days a week.

For several faculty members, one time-consuming activity just isn't enough; they need two clubs to keep them busy! Teachers like Mrs. Johnson, Mr. Stahler, and Mr. Redding serve double duty.

Principal's Address

Dear Members of the Class of "97":

Congratulations on completing your thirteen year educational quest by earning your high school diploma. I'm confident that the preparation you have received at Mansfield High School will enable you to successfully meet the challenges that the next phase of your life will present.

Best Wishes for success in the future, and I hope your memories of Mansfield High School are pleasant.

Sincerely,
Edward A. Rosa

The College Crunch

There is a promised land waiting for all good little MHS students after they pass on into the next world--the post-secondary world. The streets are gaved with ultimate frisbees and the rivers run with cheap domestic beverages. Parents can't accompany MHS grads there. That's the best part. This heavenly place, the destination of those who fulfill all graduation requirements, interview well, and display leadership qualities, has many names. Some call it work. Some call it the Armed Services. But the majority of MHS graduates call it college.

How does MHS rank as far as high schools go? Pretty well. Mansfield grads go on to a range of schools in all parts of the country. Only last year, not one but two MHS students gained acceptance to the seemingly impenetrable Amherst College.

Why do members of our generation pursue a post-secondary education? Many see it as a rest stop between childhood and real life. "I just wouldn't have any idea what to do with myself if I didn't go to school," one scared looking senior says, "besides, it sounds like fun."

As you move into the real world, whether you're putting on your lipstick, getting ready for that big Broadway show, relaxing at the beach, or just getting ready for another day, we're sure you'll do it with style. No matter where the path to the future takes you, we will always be proud of you.

Congratulations!

With Much Love
Mom and Barry

All the value of education rests in respect for the physical, intellectual and moral will of the child. . .
Francisco Ferrer

A child you are no more my son- onward now to open new doors. May gifts of love, virtue and wisdom be yours in the coming years ahead. Para vida.

Our love always, Mom and brothers Benjamin and Nathan Hughes.

Congratulations Kristy!

It's amazing how time passes by. It seems just yesterday that you anxiously waited for the tooth fairy and took your first ride to pre-school on the big yellow bus. You have had some intermittent periods in your education, but with prayer and determination you have triumphed.
We are very proud of you and wish you the very best in your future. Never stop reaching for the stars.

Love, Mommy, Daddy, sisters Dawn and Taye, brother P-Nut, niece Leah, and daughter Nikayla.

"Reach beyond the stars-
and the world will be yours."

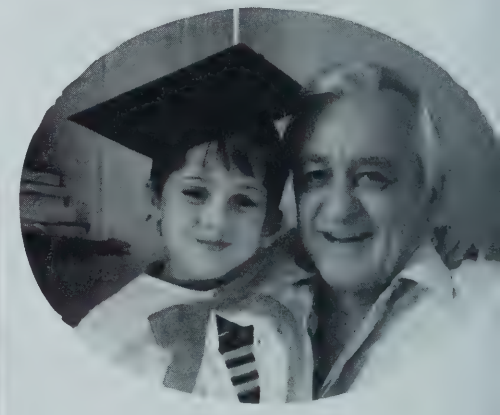
CASEY-

We are so proud of all that you've accomplished and the beautiful young lady you have become. You bring so much happiness into our lives. We will always be here for you--now and forever.

Congratulations!
All our love,
Mom and Steve

Congratulations! You graduated from Westfield Academy as a kindergartner to an honor roll, super bowl champion from Mansfield High School. Now you're off to college to become a surgeon. We couldn't be more proud of your accomplishments thus far in life. Keep up the hard work and you'll meet and probably exceed every goal you've set for yourself. We wish you all the success you deserve in life.

Love, Mom, Dad, and Alyssa



Ryan

Georgina

Congratulations to our wonderful daughter, Georgina. We are very proud of you.

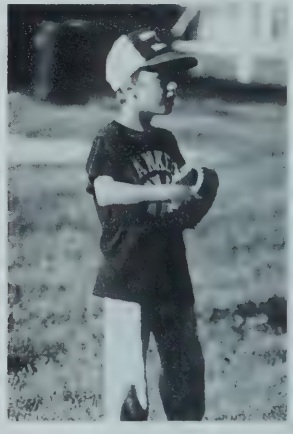
Love, Mom and Dad

Dear Jennifer,
There is so much to say to you as you enter this new phase of your life. We are so proud of you and your accomplishments. Your future holds great things for you! We know you'll continue to be the wonderful young woman that you are and that you have much to offer to the world. Most importantly, know that whatever your future holds for you, we will always be here to support and love you.

XO,
Mom and Dad

If you can dream it, you can achieve it. We're so proud of you.
Love, Mom, Dad, and Jim

Karen



Erik

Watching you grow gives us grey hairs and makes us happy. Set your goals, work hard, meet people half way. Your life is a journey, enjoy it.

Love, Mom and Dad

Congratulations Kristen

"So on and on you go
The seconds tick the time out
There's so much left to know and you're on the road to find out."
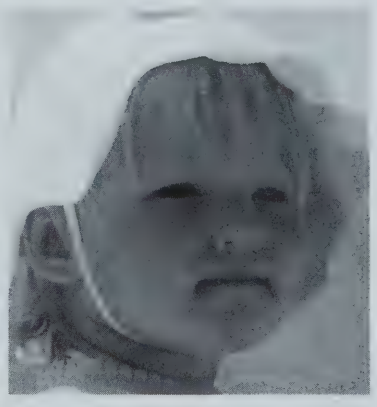
-Cat Stevens 1970

You have applied yourself. You have achieved your goals. You have grown up so well. You have made us proud. May you fare well as you continue along the road. We'll always be there for you.
Love, Mom and Dad



Chris

It seems like only yesterday we, so proudly, sat at your first graduation. You've made us proud every day since!

Congratulations on your many accomplishments and best wishes for success in college.

Love, Mom and Dad

Thanks for caring about us, Joshua.
We love you and will miss you.
Forever,
Your Class

Bones (AKA Pat)-
Thank you for being such a good son.
Good Luck!
See you at your restaurant on the Cape!
Love, Mom

"When you wish upon a star
Makes no difference who you are,
Anything your heart desires
Will come to you."

Joshua,
We are so proud of you!

Love forever and a day,

Kristen

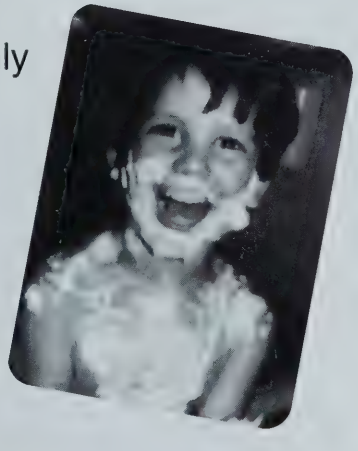
You've always given us nothing but pride and joy, and we blow you kisses as you make your way into the future.

All our love,

Mum, Dad, and John

We can't believe this time in your life is here so soon. Thank you for all the wonderful times you give us. Remember, Jennifer, always follow your dreams.
We love you so much,
Mom and Dad

Michael



It seems like only yesterday you were playing "grown-up" and now you are. We are so proud of you and we wish you luck and happiness in your future.

Love, Your family

You have paved your road to success.
We're very proud of you.
Love, Dad, Mom, and Haley

The future belongs to those who believe in the beauty of their dreams. See the beauty and believe in them. Putting one foot in front of the other, seize opportunities making the sky the limit. Crystal, keep your heart open to family and friends along your new road and then life will be a daring adventure. We are proud of you.
Hugs and Kisses,Mom and Dad

Congratulations James!

We are very proud of you.
